About the Guide . . .

Welcome to the second edition of the West Piedmont Local Foods Guide! This free guide is available to help our local farms flourish, create links for farmers and consumers, and to help build healthy communities through local food networks, while farmers oversee the tradition and heritage of the agricultural landscape. Through several resources, information was collected and compiled about area farms, markets, and other businesses that support the local foods effort.

Our region is rich in agricultural heritage, where agriculture has traditionally been the backbone of our economy. In a time of resurgence in agriculture and as the growing demand for local foods continues to spread, consumers are seeking fresh products for consumption and options for better health. “Local” means fresher because food is not “trucked” in from all across the country, but in a smaller defined area in close proximity – usually within roughly 50 miles of the region. In addition, consumers want to know where their food comes from – these farmers are our neighbors and markets are located just down the road from where we live and work.

Within this guide, listings for roadside stands and farm markets, farmers’ markets, family farms, you-pick farms, wineries, and other resources may be found. Roadside stands are just that – those found along the side of the road and are quite abundant. There are also farm markets where local producers provide their goods to neighborhood farm markets where they are sold to consumers. Farmers’ markets are spread across the West Piedmont Region in cities and towns such as Danville, Gretna, Martinsville, Rocky Mount, and Stuart, to name a few. These markets are usually open from April through October and allow the consumer to get to know the farmers who sell at these locations. Many family farms abound throughout the region as well. YOU-pick farms are available to provide opportunities for YOU to pick your own produce and experience life on the farm. In an ever-growing market, a number of local “spirits”

– wineries, breweries, and distilleries – may be found throughout the region. Other resources include artisan foods; Community Supported Agriculture (CSAs); lodging, with bed and breakfast facilities along with other farm lodging; and other travel destinations with various “agritourism” opportunities. A growing number of restaurants are also turning to local foods for freshness and quality, bringing the “farm to table” concept alive.

Also included in this guide are a map and chart for quick access to local foods in the area. Other consumer information, such as growing seasons may be found in the guide, too, which will be updated on an annual basis.

So . . . welcome to this issue of the WEST PIEDMONT LOCAL FOODS GUIDE. We hope you find just what you are looking for and more in our bountiful region.

Why Buy Local . . .

A recent study entitled, “A Community-based Food System: Building Health, Wealth, Connection and Capacity as the Foundation of Our Economic Future,” was conducted by Virginia Tech in conjunction with the Harvest Foundation, Patrick County Chamber of Commerce, Reynolds Homestead, the Economic Development Authority of Patrick County, and Virginia Cooperative Extension for an eight-county region based around Martinsville, VA. Based on the study, it was determined that $90 million of new farm income would be created in the region if area consumers purchased 15% of their food directly from the region’s farmers. Further, the report recognized that the annual economic impact would greatly increase if each Virginia household spent only $10 of its weekly food expenditures on locally grown foods. In Martinsville, that would translate to $3.3 million; $12.4 million in Henry County; $5.3 million in Patrick County; and $1.65 billion throughout Virginia.

According to a 2017 economic impact study by the University of Virginia’s Weldon Cooper Center for Public Service, agriculture is Virginia’s largest private-sector industry, with an estimated annual impact of $70 billion and providing over 334,000 jobs across the state. When combined with forestry, both industries have a total economic impact of more than $91 billion and support more than 442,000 jobs in Virginia.

Martinsville’s Uptown Revitalization Association promotes “Eat Fresh, Shop Local!” for the Uptown Martinsville Farmers’ Market. When you buy local, you are supporting farmers in your community and helping local businesses thrive, building and strengthening local ties by creating relationships and opportunities for more civic engagement, honoring our heritage and contributing to the preservation of our picturesque landscapes and rich culture.

By staying local, you can change our region’s food system by connecting directly with farmers growing your food; visiting farms on farm tours, you-pick, farm lodging, and other farm activities; asking for local foods where you shop or dine; and sharing your experiences with family, friends, and others.

Artisan Foods

The entrepreneurial spirit is alive and well in Artisan food producers who craft many specialty items made with fresh, local ingredients. Everything from homemade pizzas, breads, salsas, jams, preserves, and more value-added products are created. Catering services are also provided by many of these entrepreneurs. These value-added goods support our local farmers and entice consumers to experience these culinary and natural creations.

Community Supported Agriculture (CSA)

Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) has become a popular way for consumers to buy local, seasonal food directly from the farmer. The farmer offers a certain number of "shares" to the consumer. Typically, the share consists of a box of vegetables, but other farm products may be included. Interested consumers sign up for shares (like memberships or subscriptions) and in return receive a steady supply of seasonal produce each week throughout the farming season.

Consumers pay the farmer in advance for the shares of the forthcoming harvest and the farmer uses the cash advance to purchase seeds, supplies, and equipment to prepare for the harvest season. Throughout the growing season, the consumer gets a "return on investment" with a box of fresh fruits and vegetables. With such a successful model, farmers have begun to introduce alternatives. One increasingly common practice is the "mix and match" CSA. Rather than making up a standard box of vegetables for every member each week, the members load their own boxes with some degree of personal choice. The farmer sets out baskets of the week's vegetables. Some farmers encourage members to take a set amount of what's available, leaving behind what they do not want. Some CSA farmers may then donate the extra produce to a food bank. In other CSAs, the members have wider choices to fill their box with whatever appeals to them, within certain limitations.

The CSA agreement creates several rewards for both the farmer and the consumer. Benefits to the farmer include getting to spend time marketing the food early in the year, before beginning their long days in the field; receiving payment early in the season, which helps the farm's cash flow; and having an opportunity to get to know the people who eat the food they grow. For consumers, advantages include eating fresh food, with all the flavor and nutrients; exploring new vegetables and new ways of cooking them; usually getting to visit the farm at least once a season; finding that kids typically favor food from "their" farm – even veggies they've never been known to eat; and developing a relationship with the farmer who grows their food, while learning more about how the food is grown. However, there is a shared risk if there is a "bad" growing season due to weather or other circumstances.

CSAs aren't limited to produce. Some farmers include the option to buy shares of eggs, homemade bread, meat, cheese, fruit, flowers or other farm products along with their veggies. Sometimes several farmers will join together to offer the widest variety of goods to their members.

Family Farms

Family Farms are the “roots” of our agricultural existence. Both multi-generational and new farmers continue this very important legacy and are an integral part of this heritage, carrying on a practice steeped in tradition and love of the land. Farming has realized a resurgence of growth not seen in decades as the demand for locally grown food is exploding, not only in our region, but throughout the country. Family farms produce everything from fruits and vegetables, to meats, poultry, eggs, honey, and a variety of other foods. Many offer farm tours to make the visit even more memorable – just call or plan ahead!

Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services

The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services

(VDACS) was established in 1877, to promote the economic growth and development of Virginia agriculture, to provide consumer protection and to encourage environmental stewardship. Under the agency's purview, several programs have been created to address these goals. Two very popular marketing programs include the Virginia Grown and Virginia's Finest®. In addition, the organization provides a number of vital services and a wealth of information in support of the state's agricultural community.

Developed by VDACS, the Virginia Grown program is a marketing tool promoting fresh, local products to consumers and has a proven track record for increasing visibility, developing additional media attention and enhancing marketing opportunities for Virginia Grown products.

VDACS introduced the Virginia's Finest® Trademark Program in 1989 to enhance the economic opportunities and success of Virginia's specialty food companies, processors and agriculture producers. The classic Virginia's Finest® trademark identifies, differentiates and promotes top-quality Virginia agriculture and specialty food and beverage products. Buyers and consumers have grown to recognize the blue and red "VA check mark" logo and know they are purchasing top quality Virginia-produced and processed products, including:

- Meats • Cheeses • Soups • Seafood • Peanuts • Pasta • Baked Goods • Snacks •
Chocolates/Confections • Condiments/Dressings • Sauces • Beverages

Visit <http://www.vdacs.virginia.gov/index.shtml> for more information.

Nursery/Greenhouse

Nurseries and greenhouses play an important role in the region's agricultural landscape. A wide variety of products are available, allowing opportunities to grow your own healthy foods, select vibrant plantings of flowers and trees, and provide environmental benefits. Many seasonal products are available, too.

Roadside/Farm Markets

Roadside/farm markets provide farmers an opportunity to sell their products directly to the consumer on a routine basis, without having to drive to and set up at a local farmers' market. Sometimes, farmers sell directly to a roadside stand or "food market" owner without the inconvenience of having to attend to, manage, and operate business transactions. In turn, roadside stands provide quick and easy access to the consumer for fresh locally grown food.

Spirits

Wineries, breweries, and distilleries have sprung up all around the region – from Patrick County's Villa Appalachia Winery to Franklin County's first brewery, Sunken City Brewing Company, to Pittsylvania County's Tomahawk Mill Winery and more. According to the 2012 Census of Agriculture, an estimated forty-two farms in the region have vineyards. Virginia's growing wine industry continues to flourish, creating an economic impact that contributes more than $1.37 billion annually. The craft brew industry is thriving as well and continues to grow throughout the region.

These venues also attract tourists and are big travel destinations. The Virginia Tourism Corporation reported 2.25 million visitors to Virginia's wineries in 2015. Many facilities allow tours and tastings, host weddings and other events, and provide other opportunities to relax and enjoy your visit. More and more visitors are drawn to these destinations as there is a lot to see, taste, and experience.

Other travel destinations include agritourism sites that provide entertainment such as corn mazes, wagon rides, and other farm adventures.

YOU-Pick Farms

YOU-Pick Farms offer fun and adventure for all ages. A variety of produce is available for YOU to pick and choose in each season. Farmers invite you into their fields to harvest your own locally grown fruits and vegetables. In the spring and summer, a variety of berries are ripe for the picking; also in the summer, all sorts of vegetables can be harvested; in the fall, apples and pumpkins are plentiful; and in the winter, there are Christmas trees and other items available for the holidays. Just call ahead and when you arrive, often the farmer will greet you, explain the lay of the land and picking practice, and collect the pay. The experience lets you appreciate the fruits of your labor all the more and provides much more than the farm-fresh flavors of your harvest.

Festivals & Events

Across the region many festivals and events are held to celebrate our abundant harvests and commemorate our agricultural heritage. Agriculture is often linked with art, recreation, and tourism in our area, so there is much to see and do! There are festivals highlighting shrimp, strawberries, peaches, apples . . . and everything in between! We also enjoy many wine and beer festivals like the annual Smith Mountain Lake Wine Festival and the Brewster Walk in Martinsville. Oktoberfests are always popular, too! These are but a few of the many adventures that may be experienced in our corner of the world. Come join in the fun and explore the endless possibilities!
